

Ada to Have County Fair This Fall; Chamber of Commerce Gets Busy

MET AT TABERNACLE LAST EVENING AND TRANSACTED MUCH IMPORTANT BUSINESS FOR CITY.

A general meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held at the revival tabernacle last evening. Mr. Gowing, the efficient chairman of the body, presided and brought before the members for their consideration several matters of importance.

The meeting was called primarily for the purpose of giving relief to the citizens and business men in the matter of making public donations, signing subscription sheets, patronizing various advertising schemes, etc., etc.

It was stated that the business people of the city were subjected daily, and almost hourly here of late, to soliciters and "drummers" for first one kind of a proposition and another, and that they were unable, under the present unorganized system of things, to distinguish between that which is worthy and that which is not.

It was shown that soliciters had "worked" the town for donations for institutions and enterprises that did not exist, and that the business men of the town were continually being made the victims of fake advertising schemes of one kind and another, much to their worry and loss of time.

A resolution was unanimously passed making a committee of the Chamber of Commerce, the same to be selected by the chairman and kept secret, the general censor of all such plans, and in adopting the resolution the Chamber of Commerce entered a covenant not to give support to any solicitor or any scheme of any kind whatsoever until the same shall have been submitted to the secret committee of the Chamber of Commerce, through its secretary, and the same given its sanction and "O. K."

In other words, when you are solicited for funds for any purpose, or for financial help to any person or institution, or for any advertising scheme, you are not expected to even waste your time looking at the proposition unless the one doing the soliciting can first show you the credentials of the Chamber of Commerce.

This is the most progressive step the Chamber of Commerce has taken for some time, and is a custom that has long since been in vogue in all towns and cities of any consequence in all parts of the country.

The County Fair.
The next question to come up for discussion was the proposition of holding a county fair at Ada this fall.

It seems that the fair association owes lumber, hardware and other bills to the amount of approximately $3,400 incurred for improvements at the grounds, and that they cannot hold another fair until this indebtedness has been satisfied.

This fact was made known to the Pontotoc County Improved Breeders' Association, at its meeting in this city a few weeks ago, and at that meeting the breeders agreed to use their efforts in an attempt to sell enough stock in the fair association's incorporation to bring the amount necessary to relieve the urgent indebtedness. In fact a committee was appointed from the breeders to do that very thing. They worked at the job a few days, it seems, and sold fifteen hundred dollars worth of the stock.

When these facts were made (Continued on Page Eight.)

CHICAGO RACE RIOTS STILL ON

BLOODY SCENES OF LAST NIGHT FOLLOWED THIS MORNING BY THE MURDER OF TWO.

By the Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 29.—One identified negro and one white man were killed and two negroes wounded at Wabash and Adams streets, in the heart of the downtown district, in rioting which was renewed shortly after six o'clock this morning.

Racial disorders have spread to the north side, where a number of blacks were chased and threatened. Very few negroes reside on the north side, however.

Four more victims in last night's rioting were discovered early today, bringing the estimate of dead to 22 and injured to 500. Four thousand soldiers with full war equipment stood ready for action today. The police list of fatalities rose to 24 at 10:30 a. m., when Thomas Joshua, negro, was killed by a detective, who fired into a crowd of rioters on the south side and when B. F. Gardy, negro, died at a hospital of wounds.

Ada Band Will Go to Konawa Picnic By Car Tomorrow

The Ada band is arranging to go to the big two-day community picnic at Konawa tomorrow morning to play for one day. O. N. Walker, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, said last night.

Mr. Walker drove to Konawa today over the low water bridge at Byng to test out the road and find the most desirable route. He will arrange the trip and accompany the band to Konawa by automobiles tomorrow.

Mr. Walker will also visit employers of various members of the band who are working and make arrangements for them to have leave of absence for the day.

The Ada band is getting in first class condition from constant training and the people of Konawa are in for some rare musical treats tomorrow.

BOLSHEVIKI UPRISING IN BULGARIA IS REPORTED

By the Associated Press

LONDON, July 29.—A bolshevik uprising in Bulgaria was reported in a wireless dispatch today from Moscow. The outbreak is declared to have occurred in a garrison town, the garrison joining the revolutionists.

Tuesday morning at the tabernacle the crowd was one of the best day audiences to date and the address delivered by Rev. Ham, the evangelist, was illuminating and suggestive. He read many passages from the Pauline Epistles and announced as his subject "The Church." His message did not deal with the local church, or the church as an organization. He talked of the Church as the Spiritual Body of Christ. The message in concentrated form is presented below.

"The Old Testament talks a great deal of the kingdom, but has little or nothing to say concerning the church. The New Testament has something to say concerning the church as an organization, but I desire to speak of the church as an organism and not an organization. Only twice does the Lord refer to the church. Many of you read the Bible to find support for your pet theory, and not to find the truth at all.

"The church is not built on Simon Peter but on Christ Jesus. The church is the house of God, divinely built and divinely owned. I do not mean the house where you meet on Sundays, but the Spiritual Body of Christ. The church house should be sacred and it should be your chief delight to meet there on the Sabbath days. The presiding officer of the church is the Holy Spirit. If you have not been born again and baptized by the Spirit of God, you are not a member of the body of Christ. Properly speaking the church records are kept in heaven. You need not tell me that the Holy Spirit called some of you old hypocritical church officers to the places of honor and responsibility you hold in the churches of this city. The Bible gives all the qualifications of church officers and you do not fill the least of these much less the greatest. Some of your wives and daughters, not to speak of yourselves, play cards, attend dances and shine in front of the foot lights. A donkey must have called you to office. God called your pastors to preach the gospel and they ought to spend much time on their knees and much time studying the Bible, but you demand that they run all over town nursing spiritual babes and doing the work you members ought to do.

"The church is a big family and every family ought to be a place of worship. Is that so? Well, what a family fuss some family in Ada is having! The church as we have defined it is made up of people called out of the world. We have heard the call—'Come ye out from among them and be ye separate.' There are lots of you church members of the local organizations called churches that have not left off the flesh pots of Egypt as yet and the likelihood is that you will die and go to hell in the membership of the church.

"The church is the most democratic institution in the world. Jesus is the great commoner and where he goes imperialism is done away. In Christ we have a great brotherhood. Let Christ be the center of a brotherhood and all is well, but without Christ all federations are dangerous. If the church had not failed of her function, your lodges and fraternal orders never would have sprung up. Had the church lived up to her rights Spiritism, Rensellism and Eddyism would never have arisen to damn the human family. If your lodge is your hope, bud, you are blown up.

"The worship of God is not confined to any place or season. Some of you say that you can worship in spirit and say at home or motor to Sulphur on Sundays. Well, is a cinch that if you do not worship in your home, you will make a mighty poor hand at it on Sunday in the meeting house. Usually speaking, those who worship God most in secret are most frequent in their attendance on divine worship on Sundays at the church.

"The office of the church is to evangelize the world at home and abroad. The church has in some places been so far socialized as to forget its function to evangelize. In this city you have been consuming your time and energy on your own little bunch while the masses have been going hot footed to hell. The church is to be a witness for Christ in the world. The church is the only institution entrusted with this (Continued on Page Eight.)

CHICAGO IN GRIP OF MORE STRIKES

FIFTEEN THOUSAND STREET AND ELEVATED RAILWAY WORKERS QUIT JOBS.

By the Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 29.—Fifteen thousand street and elevated railway employees struck this morning, completely tying up the city's transportation systems. The companies at home made no attempt to run the cars and workers depended on steam railways, automobiles, bicycles and other vehicles to reach their places of business.

Striking carmen demand 85 cents an hour, an increase of 77 per cent over the present wages, an eight-hour day and time and a half for overtime. Union officials reached an agreement last night on 65 cents, but at a mass meeting shortly before midnight the men voted to strike at four a. m. today.

Mr. M. C. Wilson Writes the News About Library

Mr. M. C. Wilson, of the firm of Stevens-Wilson, of this city, who is in New York making his fall and winter purchases, was asked by the commercial and civic interests of the city to make an effort while there to get in touch with the Carnegie Corporation and see what could be done with reference to getting an increase in the proposed appropriation for a Carnegie library in Ada.

Mr. Wilson has complied with the request of our people, but it seems that there is going to be some difficulty in getting the increase owing to a shortage of funds for that purpose in the hands of the Corporation. Mr. Wilson's letter follows:

New York City, July 26, 1919. Ada Evening News, Ada, Okla.

Gentlemen:
Yesterday I had an opportunity to visit the Carnegie Corporation in reference to securing additional funds for the purpose of establishing a public library in Ada, and I am very sorry to say that Mr. Bertram, secretary to the Carnegie Corporation, advises me that there is no possible chance for this fund to be increased at this time. He says we are very fortunate to have a promise of any funds whatever for the establishment of the library as they are making no new donations whatever at this time. He said, however, that there was a possible chance for this fund to be increased in the year 1920. He realizes as well as we do that the amount of $12,500.00 is not sufficient to establish the kind of a library which we should have in Ada, and I believe he will add to this amount whenever he has the power to do so.

The only thing for us to do is to raise additional funds for the library among ourselves at Ada, or to wait until next year before putting up the building which we have planned.

New York is a very lively city indeed these days; the air of prosperity here seems to have set the metropolis on fire with vigor, and the higher prices of all lines of merchandise seems to rather encourage than the retard the purchasing inclination of the country at large. Yours very truly,
M. C. WILSON.

WATER MAIN BREAKS; WATER OFF ALL NIGHT

Ada was without a water supply last night and up until almost noon today. The cause was the breaking of the water main on the South prong of Jack Fork yesterday. The break took place at about 10 o'clock yesterday morning. At the place of the break the pipe makes a sharp incline and turn. It was there that the burst came, and from then until 10 o'clock today

THIS REALLY IS IMPORTANT

July 28, 1919.

Mr. Marvin Brown,
The Ada News,
Ada, Oklahoma.
My Dear Mr. Brown:

I want to express to you our appreciation of the stand you have taken with reference to the Court House proposition.

There is another proposition of equal importance, which might be included in the same procedure, that of a County Hospital.

Under the provisions of Chapter 273, Session Laws of 1919, the Board of County Commissioners are permitted to order an election for the purpose of voting bonds for the purchase of site and construction of a County Hospital. To one familiar with the enormous sums expended by the county, during the recent epidemic of influenza, as well as the sums expended by the Chamber of Commerce, the City of Ada, the noble and heroic work of the local chapter of the Red Cross, and the citizens of the city of Ada, the importance of such an institution is apparent.

Again assuring you of our appreciation of the "Evening News" and its stand on the matter of the County Court House, and with many good wishes for its continued success, I am,

Yours very truly,

MILTON GARNER.

MILTON GARNER,
County Clerk.

Commissioner Deal with a crew of men worked like Trojans to repair the main. They did not even stop for sleep last night. The break was repaired today to the point where the pumps could start and concrete is being laid at the break this afternoon. The place of the break is about eight miles from town.

The people of Ada took the inconvenience because of no water good naturedly and nobody seemed to be angry about it, says Miss Webb at the city water office.

MORE SERVICE FOR EXPRESS BUSINESS

Ada is to have even better service with the American Railway Express than she has at present if plans of the Chamber of Commerce are carried out.

Recently the green house at Ada, the ice cream and ice company and the bakeries here complained because they could ship no goods on the two night trains of the Frisco railroad and the one on the Katy at 10:15 p. m. The matter was taken up with the state division superintendent of express. He stated that a thorough investigation would be made and if found practical the added service would be extended.

There are three trains coming through Ada now that carry no express from here. One is the night train on the Katy and the other two are the Frisco south at 11:49 p. m. and the Frisco north at 4 a. m. This makes it bad for such businesses as are named above and thus the steps were taken to improve the service. Announcement in regard to it is expected soon.

Notice W. O. W.

On account of having some business on hand that demands immediate attention, all members are urged to meet this evening at 7:30 so that all can get away in plenty of time to attend services at the tabernacle.—Hugh Bennett.

M'GUYRE'S HERD FOR INSPECTION

CITIZENS OF ADA INVITED TO VIEW THE REGISTERED HOLSTEINS ON WEST TWELFTH.

The Holstein herd of R. L. McGuyre, which will sell at public auction here Thursday, is now to be seen at the mule barn on West Twelfth street, just one block west of the postoffice. This herd consists of thirty head of registered Holstein bulls, cows and calves. The great herd bull, Sir Hengerveld Segis, is in the herd, one of the choice bulls of the country, having been sired by the grand champion of the Northwest. Mr. McGuyre is anxious for the people of Ada to see this cattle before it is sold, and he invites the public to visit the barns tomorrow. He says people are coming from many states to buy this stuff.

To Satisfy Her Conscience

That Rev. M. F. Ham is doing good in Ada is attested by what took place here yesterday.

Recently a second-hand store in Ada bought some furniture from a family who was moving out of the city. The family left early in the morning and the second-hand man did not go for the goods until late that afternoon. He noticed that some of the goods were missing, but not knowing who got them, said nothing about it.

Yesterday a woman walked into the second-hand store and asked the proprietor the price of certain goods. He named the price and she paid him the money. She then gave him other goods which she had wrapped in paper.

The woman stated that it took nerve to come to see him like this, but that she had heard Ham preach the night before and that she had to come to see him to relieve her guilty conscience. She was thanked for bringing back the goods.

Who says Ham is not doing good in Ada?

Fashion's Limelight Reveals Much Neckwear

Women seem to have become much addicted to wearing neckpieces of many kinds. A little journey through shops and departments that carry neckwear reveals such a world of it and such a variety of it that there must be a great demand for all kinds of neckwear. Many of the pieces are intended to replace summer furs. These include scarfs made of plushes, ostrich boas, ostrich capes and capes of marabout feathers or marabout finished with ostrich fringe. This ostrich fringe, which appears like marabout in black, white and natural color, is used in borders and bands in scarfs of gold and silver tissue.

Some of the new plushes used for scarfs do not attempt a close imitation of fur but suggest the most popular summer furs, as ermine and broad-tail and moleskin. Besides these there are some handsome satin scarfs and capes trimmed with narrow bands of real fur, shown with hats to match like the smart affair that is shown at the right of the two figures above. Rich silk tassels and silk embroidered motifs put this in a class with the handsomest furs.

Nearly all of these are in the natural taupe color of the feathers, but in ostrich capes and boas there is often a mixture of white and natural flues.

Ruffs made of malines in very full plaits and ruffs made of loops of wide satin ribbon are among old acquaintances that find themselves returned to favor, now that everything in neckwear proves to be of interest. They are not at all difficult to make, the plaits or loops are simply stitched on to a band that lies about the neck, and they fasten with ties of narrow satin ribbon.

Small chokers and other small neckpieces in furs appear to have displaced larger neckpieces and capes for summer wear and narrow scarfs of satin, finished at the ends with fringe, prove themselves a chic novelty on women who know how to wear them well.

AND HERE COME THE METHODISTS WITH PROTEST AGAINST DANCING

At the tabernacle Sunday evening, Rev. Wallace M. Crutchfield, pastor read a resolution against dancing, recently passed by the board of stewards of that church, and which they propose to make effective. The resolution is as follows:

On December fifteenth, 1918, there was held a church conference of the First Methodist Church of Ada, Oklahoma. It was announced and assembled for the transaction of business of the church. One item of business was the unanimous action taken to the intent that dancing in private or in public, is highly dangerous to the morals of those participating. It was also declared that those guilty of such indulgences, even though members of the church, were in enmity with Christ. It was the undivided conviction of this conference that members indulging in the dance or countenancing the dance had no valid claim to continuance in membership in said church in good and honorable standing. This conference formally instructed the pastor to take legal steps against certain violators of the church covenant, which action was taken with the result that is well known throughout the city.

Following this conference of the church the board of stewards met in their regular monthly meeting, sanctioned the action of the church conference, and requested the pastor to preach a sermon at an early date touching the evils of the dance and the attitude of the church on that matter. The sermon was delivered by the pastor and his men voted with him to the man endorsing every word of his terrific arraignment of the dance and dance halls. The stewards of the church also suggested immediate action against certain individuals as mentioned above, and legal action was immediately taken in every case detailed for such procedure.

Very sincerely,

Pastor First Methodist Church, Ada,

BIG MARKET BRINGS ECONOMICAL METHODS

By News' Special Service

NEW YORK, July 29.—With the price of pineapples what it is, how could the manufacturer of a desert gelatine afford to use half a pineapple to flavor a single package of his goods? No, that was too much for a New York woman to believe, so she clipped the advertisement and sent it to the National Vigilance Committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs, expressing her astonishment that the owners of the paper in which the announcement appeared did not know better and therefore, refuse to publish such an announcement.

Then she learned something about modern business—about the manner in which a big company that establishes a wide market through advertising, can bring down prices through quantity production.

The investigation showed that the pineapples were not bought on the New York market, of course. They were pineapples too ripe to ship from Hawaii, and were crushed there, and the juice shipped to the factory in the United States.

It was shown that the advertisement was absolutely true, but even at that, the advertiser thanked the advertising association for calling his attention to the question the woman raised. He figured that others, too, might doubt the statement, and he said that he hoped to be able to explain the matter in enough detail in future announcement to make people understand and appreciate the situation. Truthful advertising, fully believable, is the only kind that can pay in the long run, the manufacturer declares.

Council of Seven Great Powers Meets Today In Paris to Revise Old Pact

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 29.—A commission representing seven powers will meet in Paris Tuesday, July 29th, (today) to consider the demands of Belgium for reconsideration of the treaty of 1839 by which Holland annexed the territory on the south bank of the Scheldt river and the southern part of Dutch Limburg, an elongated strip of land between Belgium and Germany, says a Belgian official announcement issued here.

In view of this meeting, the Belgian Official Information Service has made public a statement by Dr. A. Hebbelynck, Rector Emeritus of the University of Louvain, reviewing the treaties under which Holland obtained possession of the disputed territory and setting forth arguments in favor of Belgium's claims.

Dr. Hebbelynck, who is now in New York, declares that the contention of Belgium is that, both for the safeguard of its military security in the north and for its economical development, it must have absolute control of the southern half of the river Scheldt, which implies possession of its left bank. This left bank from the North Sea nearly to the Belgium port of Antwerp now is controlled by Holland.

Belgium, says Dr. Hebbelynck, was compelled by the treaty of 1839 to recognize Holland's sovereignty over this territory, now known as Dutch Flanders. In return Belgium was to be protected by treaties of neutrality the fulfillment of which, he says, was demonstrated in 1914 when Germany called them "mere scraps of paper," and invaded Belgium.

"The experience of 1914," continues Dr. Hebbelynck, "have made clear that unless Antwerp can even in time of war maintain its free access to the seas, unhampered by the quibbles of a neutral neighbor, the position of Antwerp is rendered indefensible for any length of time. The peril is made all the more acute by the fact that Antwerp is the only seaport available in Belgium for big ships such as army and ammunition transports.

"From the economical point of view it is an absolute necessity that Belgium obtain the right to manage without hindrance, as a sovereign and independent power, the whole water system not only of the Scheldt river from Antwerp to the sea but also of the low-lying lands of Northern Flanders and of the ship canal from Ghent to the Scheldt river at Terneuzen.

"The keys of Antwerp are at present in foreign hands. Belgium claims them back on the strength of principles of international law, today universally proclaimed."

He asserts that endless trouble arises from the manner in which Dutch government officials carry out the agreement over the use of the small harbor of Terneuzen, an outlet of the ship canal from Ghent to the sea through Dutch territory.

Expounding Belgium's claims to the southern part of Dutch Limburg, Dr. Hebbelynck asserts that Holland's possession of this territory "lays the northeastern frontier of Belgium open to all attacks because the Dutch government recognizes the impossibility to defend Limburg against an invader coming from the east."

This fact, he adds, compelled Holland to let a whole German army escape through Limburg into Germany with its plunder carried from Belgium in November 1918. The Rector of Louvain also points out that Belgium needs a ship canal across Dutch Limburg in order to tap the enormous coal fields of Westphalia.

"Belgium," he concludes, "does not want to grab territory from Holland. It only craves a reconsideration of the iniquitous arrangements of 1814 to 1839 in the light of modern principles."

He points out that Holland should be compensated by obtaining from Germany the provinces of Ostfriesland and Cleef, which he says, are largely inhabited by Dutch-speaking people.

MILLIONS CATTLE TICKS CLEANED IN JUNE

By News' Special Service

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Despite extensive rains, swollen streams, flooded vats, and shortage of labor for the grain harvesting, more than 7,000,000 dippings of cattle to get rid of the cattle fever tick were supervised in June by Federal, State, and county inspectors. The actual number of dippings was 7,097,260, and while that is 524,009 less than the dippings in May, it is thought to be a remarkably good one in view of the adverse conditions with which the tick fighters had to contend.

There is another reason, too, for the fever dippings in June, and a reason that is cited with solid satisfaction by officials of the Bureau of Animal Industry of the United States Department of Agriculture. In areas where "mopping up" work was conducted in the spring, further dipping has been found unnecessary because of the absence of ticks. That is an indication of the condition that will become more general in the tick-infested sections.

The healthy progress of the anti-tick campaign is shown by the following summary of June dippings: Alabama, 994,275; Arkansas, 665,479; Florida, 275,687; Georgia, 528, 409; Louisiana, 1,505,614; Mississippi, 423,686; North Carolina, 7,589; Oklahoma, 627,572; South Carolina, 143,641; Texas (north), 1,612,969; Texas (south), 322,339.

Dipping vats in operation number: Alabama, 7,851; Arkansas, 3,726; North Carolina, 543; Oklahoma, 1,137; Florida, 1,325; Georgia, 2,407; Louisiana, 4,545; Mississippi, 5,726; South Carolina, 827; Texas (north), 4,649; Texas (south), 1,197.

mental principals of animals and crop production, and conservation are the underlying principals of the course, with special considerations given to the sure crops and suitable animals for this section. At once, the student is brought in touch with the understanding that diversified farming is the keynote to successful farming in this region. They discover that this system of agriculture insures a steady income; increases farm values, restores soil fertility, secures a better school attendance, leads toward consolidation of schools, bring about good roads, and means living on the farm.

This subject is not only studied from the informational view point, as other subjects of the curriculum, but it is given the "how to make a living trend," just as far as possible making elaborate use of the home project plan. The resident students of Ada and Pontotoc county are assigned the growing of a crop, animal, or some similar task as a part of their agricultural course. This phase of the war is similar to that outlined by the vocational agricultural schools. The field work is directed and supervised by B. A. Pratt, County Agent Hill, and home demonstration agent, Mrs. Duvall. At present, fifty resident students of the Normal are carrying on productive project work at home. Over 250 boys and girls of the rural schools of Pontotoc county are doing project work, who are not enrolled in the Normal, however, their work is supervised in a similar manner.

All of the teachers, who are not resident students, are required to carry on their work along the lines of observation, laboratory, and the topic method. They observe and write up the topics of the resident students. In the laboratory they become familiar with milk testing; grain testing, milk records, feeding for production, judging animals and grains. In the field they work out problems on soil testing, use of lime and organic matter, pruning of fruits, the making and the use of sprays for plant and animal pests, are some of the many things worked out.

After the student has gained a general knowledge of the rudiments of agriculture, he is then given a thorough knowledge of the community activities of the public school, that is, just what the school may actually do to render greater service to its community. Specialists are brought in from the A. & M. college and from other sources, who are experts in farm problems and in general rural activities. Special courses on poultry, stock judging, club work and the like are put on. The teacher students who have already accomplished results along this line are given an opportunity to explain their achievements.

Since Mr. Pratt's coming to the Normal two years ago, he has been directing his efforts to a great extent along the development of community center lines. During the past year excellent results have been accomplished at Frisco, Union Valley, Center and other places. In order to put this work on a more permanent basis and to be of a greater assistance to the teachers in developing their community interests, Pontotoc county, for the present year, has been grouped into twenty-five divisions, with from one to five well informed teachers in each group, who are interested and qualified to do the work. The leader of each community will be the reporter for that community, and will keep their community informed with reference to the important events. They also, will assist in the boys and girls club work; milk testing, seed testing, grain testing, farm accounting courses, the distribution of agricultural and other literature, and in all general problems of the community. Some of the leaders are Prof. Hughes, Frisco; Prof. Bowers, Center; Miss Edwards, Vanoss; George Overturn, Maxwell; Prof. McCracken, Dolberg, and Prof. Butcher of Allen.

It is the plan of the Normal Agricultural Department, especially, to assist in the agricultural problems. For this purpose milk testers, grain testers, score cards, charts, lantern slides and the like will be kept in circulation among these community centers throughout the school year. Also, East Central Normal is the general distributing point of the excellent educational material put out by the International Harvester Company, in the way of large charts, lantern slides and motion pictures. This work is carried on by the co-operation and assistance of the county superintendent and the county agent.

In regard to the efficiency of the work accomplished by this Agricultural Department, Pres. Cantwell of the A. & M. College, stated that this department excels all the other schools of the state in this line of work outside the agricultural college. District Agricultural Agent Callarman writes they have no knowledge of the work of anyone, who has been connected with this line of work who has made as many touch downs in the same length of time as has been made by the agricultural department of the East Central Normal. The kind of work is the highest type of community and rural educational work.

A Chance Acquaintance

By T. B. ALDERSON

(Copyright, 1919, by the Western News-paper Union.)

Dale Morton felt that he had done a good month's work and had earned a few days' vacation. He had been sent on a mission of looking up the rights of his employer, a city merchant, to an estate. In his pocket was a mass of notes and copies of documents sufficient to prove a handsome addition to the already opulent resources of John Wylie. There was a small outside interest. Morton had the name of this person could come later, he decided.

It was at the pleasant little town of Grassmere that he got off the train, put up at its hotel and settled down to a few days' sojourn. The next day affected his destiny more than he had ever anticipated and held him at Grassmere for over a week. Morton was idling at a spot of coolness and shade at the riverside at the edge of a pretty stretch of the woods next day, when a juvenile howl arrested his attention.

"Oh, it's broke! Oh, Cousin Kate! My slingshot is all gone to pieces!" and a tearful-faced boy came into view.

"What's the trouble, sonny?" inquired Morton, and the lad held up a wreck represented by two tattered suspender ends, a crocheted stick and a dangling strip of leather.

"Don't cry," advised Morton soothingly. "Maybe it can be fixed."

It was many a year since Morton had possessed a like boyish contrivance, but he set his inventive genius at work. The crocheted stick was intact and his wallet was surrounded by two heavy elastic bands. In a jiffy he had adjusted these to the stick, the piece of leather was set in place, and the boy fairly danced with delight as he was handed the finished article.

"Oh, ain't it just dandy!" he exuberated. "Why, it beats Nat Rood's sling all to nothing!"

"I hope you won't use it to annoy the birds?" observed Morton.

"Oh, no, sir—never that! Just for targets. Sister—look, just look!"

The lad was twenty feet away digging for munitions in a heap of pebbles. The girl drew back shyly and started after him. It was a brief casual conversation and he was sorry when they reached a house at the edge of the wood and he raised his hat in adieu.

Morton took the self-same ramble the following day, to come upon his young friend with a paper target tacked to a tree upon which he was trying his skill. Morton tried a few chance shots himself. Then he caught sight of a flitting form in the garden of the house and the boy called out:

"Oh, Cousin Catherine! Here is the same gentleman who was so kind to me yesterday. Maybe he'd like a bouquet of our flowers."

"If you care for them at all, I will be glad to give you our choicest," she said, coming to the fence.

Dale Morton went back to his hotel with a nosegay made up of the prettiest flowers in Kate's garden. He had lingered among the roses and lilies for a full hour, and had come away deeming his pretty hostess a veritable queen of loveliness and grace.

"The mischief!" he ejaculated as he reached his room at the hotel and stood rooted with dismay. During his absence some one had entered the room and had gone away with his wallet, carelessly left on a bureau. It contained little money, but it held the papers he had been at such pains and expense to secure and he felt the loss of them to be a serious matter.

Morton at once wrote to his employer, telling of the theft and asking for instructions. He hoped that the same night involve a new going over the ground he had already covered, for that would keep him in the district at least where he would be in proximity of his peerless Kate. It would take at least two days to receive a reply to his letter. He made a new slingshot and took it to Ned. The following evening he strolled past the house that held his divinity. Just as he passed the gate, excited and white-faced, Ned came rushing around the corner of the house.

"Oh, say!" he gasped, "I've killed somebody! The folks are all away and as I was crossing the lot to go over to Nat Rood's house, I saw a man prying up one of our side windows. I fired with my slingshot to hit the side of the house to scare him away. The stone must have hit him instead, for he fell flat."

"We must look into this," said Morton and entered the yard. A man with blood trickling down his face was blindly staggering to his feet. He had acted the thief and looked one. Morton led him to the street just as a village watchman came along. It was a fortunate action, for, upon searching the man, Morton's wallet and the stolen papers were found upon him.

Of course after all this excitement Morton had to remain to guard the house until the family had returned, and amid the explanations that ensued he learned that Kate was Kate Knowlton. And Kate Knowlton was the co-heir with Morton's employer to the estate he had been looking up, and quite naturally, being completely in love with her, before he left Grassmere the devoted lover asked her to become his wife.

This is only one of many remarks that are made daily in regard to the condition of Ada streets. And along with the other modern improvements of the day that are pushing Ada to the front, it seems that it behooves her to get busy on the construction of better streets if she is to make the Cosmopolitan City of the west to which she aspires.

NATION-WIDE DRIVE FOR BETTER STOCK

"BETTER SIRES—BETTER STOCK" IS SLOGAN OF NATIONAL BETTER LIVE STOCK CRUSADE.

By News' Special Service

WASHINGTON, July 29.—"Better Sires—Better Stock." This is the slogan of a national better live-stock crusade, to get actively in motion October 1, that is announced by the United States Department of Agriculture, working in cooperation with the State agricultural colleges and other agencies interested in live-stock improvement. The campaign looks forward to the future food needs of this country's increasing population and results from long and careful observation of the live-stock industry in this country, and was planned after extensive consultation with the specialists and breeders. The plan is to hasten the replacement of the multitude of scrub domestic animals in the United States with pure-bred themselves. The goal in view is greater efficiency in production.

The campaign will be the first organized crusade in a large country to improve all live stock simultaneously. It will interfere in no way with any work in live-stock improvement now being conducted, but makes all the work more definite and effective by providing official recognition for progressive breeders.

The campaign will be supervised from the Department of Agriculture in Washington, and in each state by the State Agricultural College, County agents and other field workers of the Department of Agriculture and of the State colleges will handle the campaign locally. Every live-stock owner actively co-operating and keeping and using

MAKING THE PENNIES BIGGER

When James Buchanan was president and tall beaver hats were in vogue; when gentlemen wore broad cravats and ladies wore hoop skirts the pennies they tossed to children were as big as quarters. But the cart-wheel coppers your grandfather got for keeping his lace collar clean were not as big in buying power as the pennies of today.

A penny then might buy a pastry, or ten of them take one to the Fair, but your great-aunt and great uncle couldn't have gone to a movie at any price.

Your great-gran'ther may have driven the fastest horse in the country and paid a tidy sum for it. But the price of a stable of thoroughbreds would not have bought him a flivver.

Sixty years ago the ladies could go shopping for dry goods and buy silks that would make you green with envy, linens that were linens and broadcloths that beggar description. But what their favorite store did not have they usually got along without.

You can pick up your daily newspaper and in fifteen minutes you can know what the different shops are offering in fabrics, patterns, varieties and qualities that great-grandmother never dreamed could be gathered together under any conditions.

Times have changed, and so have merchandise and business methods. One of the influences that has helped to bring about so much of change, that has helped to multiply opportunities and increased the spending size of our pennies is advertising.

Every merchant, every manufacturer knows that advertising materially reduces selling costs by increasing the demand for and the distribution of the products of hundreds of thousands of mills. Indeed many of the things we count today as necessities or simple luxuries could not be made and sold at their reasonable prices except as advertising has created a broad market for them, making millions of sales at little prices and little profits.

And so you owe very much to advertising. You owe much to the people of yesterday who have read and been influenced by past advertising and so have made possible the economies and varieties and wide distribution of merchandise that you enjoy.

You owe present advertising a thorough reading. A greater familiarity with advertising, with advertisers and advertised merchandise makes continually for the increasing size of your pennies.

WONDERFUL TRIP OF RELIEF TRAIN

RECORD RUN ACROSS SIBERIA, CARRYING AID TO POOR JEWISH SUFFERERS FROM WAR.

By News' Special Service

NEW YORK, July 29.—A relief train of 31 crowded to the last square inch of space, has just completed a record trip across the vast stretches of Siberia, carrying aid to Jewish sufferers from the war, in all the towns between Vladivostok and Omak, according to a report just received by the American Jewish Relief committee.

The train was in charge of Samuel Mason, head of Jewish relief work in Siberia. It was loaded with American Red Cross supplies, cases of clothing sent by Jewish relief agencies in America, and blankets bought in Japan with American Jewish relief funds. Allotments of the supplies were unloaded at Harbin, Buchedo, Irkutsk, Taiga and Omsk.

This shipment represents a part of the $8,000,000 worth of supplies which have been sent abroad by Jewish relief agencies since the beginning of the war. It is for the purpose of counting these shipments regularly that the American Jewish Relief Committee is seeking a fund of $35,000,000 this year. Siberia and the Orient are now thoroughly organized for relief, while American Jewish agents for some months have been supplying food, clothing, medicines and the like to save 6,000,000 destitute people, both Jews and Christians, Vukia, Jugoslavia, Lithuania, Palestine, Turkey, Serbia, Greece, Siberia, and to war refugees in Holland and many points in the Orient. The money sought will assure the continuance of this work until the time when the people in these lands are again able to care for themselves according to Louis Marshall, Henry Morgenthau Felix M. Warburg and others of the Committee.

SURGEONS agree that in cases of Cuts, Burns, Bruises and Wounds, the FIRST TREATMENT is most important. When an EFFICIENT antiseptic is applied promptly, there is no danger of infection and the wound begins to heal at once. For use on man or beast, BORO-ZONE is the IDEAL ANTISEPTIC and HEALING AGENT. Buy it now and be ready for an emergency. Price 25c, 50c, $1.00 and $1.50. Sold by Bart Smith.—Adv.

HAS FOUND A SURE WAY OF AVOIDING CHILLS AND AGUE

TAKES SWAMP CHILL AND FEVER TONIC BEFORE DISEASE GETS HOLD OF SYSTEM.

Mr. John Glasco of Dierks, Ark., has the right idea on avoiding malaria and similar ailments. He always keeps a bottle of Swamp Chill and Fever Tonic on hand, and begins taking it before the disease has time to get going. He says he uses it for all stomach disorders, too.

Other sufferers from malaria, ague, etc., are equally as hearty in their praise of Swamp Chill and Fever Tonic. And many others find it just as effective for colds and grippe as it is for chills and fever.

It seldom takes more than three days to break up malaria chills with Swamp Chill and Fever Tonic. And no purgative has to be taken with it—the tonic itself acts gently and agreeably upon the liver and bowels. It contains no calomel, and is tasteless and pleasant to take.

For over twenty years Swamp Chill Tonic has been the favorite prescription of a great many physicians. They endorse it because they know it is good.

Sold by all dealers—60 cents a bottle.

A FORMER RESIDENT ASHAMED OF STREETS

"I love the people in Ada and I had rather live in Ada than any town I have ever lived in, but I think the streets in Ada are a disgrace to the town." was a remark made by a lady yesterday while driving over the city with a friend.

This particular lady is a former resident of Ada, but is living in another state at this time, and on a return trip here for a visit to friends, was agreeably surprised to see so much building, both in the business and residence sections of the city, and general improvements in other lines, but she was shocked to find that still there were no streets in Ada on which one may drive with ease and comfort, except Main.

This is only one of many remarks that are made daily in regard to the condition of Ada streets. And along with the other modern improvements of the day that are pushing Ada to the front, it seems that it behooves her to get busy on the construction of better streets if she is to make the Cosmopolitan City of the west to which she aspires.

Telephone No. 4.

THESE MEN ARE WORKING FOR ADA.

The president of the chamber of commerce and his committee appointed to co-operate with the city commissioners in devising means whereby Ada may be saved from disaster because of the lack of water, the city commissioners themselves and the committee from the Lions Club who were invited to be present in an advisory capacity, have, for the past few days, displayed the spirit that is building cities all over this country, and the spirit that will make Ada what she so richly deserves to be, namely, a progressive city of the first class.

Mr. Benham, the engineer who was employed to submit plans to the city for a waterworks system, or plans for the improvement of the system we have, which ever we may choose to select, arrived Friday morning, put his plans and drawings on exhibition at the city hall and on Friday night read to the officials and committees referred to his full report.

Since that time these men have been actively at work in an effort to arrive at the proposition which will be submitted to the people in the form of a bond election just as soon as the details have been arranged.

They have neglected their own business and worked diligently at the job, and they are entitled to the thanks of every citizen of Ada for the interest and activity they are using in this most important matter.

What is wanted is a proposition that every tax payer in the city can support with good grace, one that will serve the city's purpose, and at the same time one on which the money spent at this time will not be wasted.

That they will submit this kind of a proposition is foregone for the very good reason that the time has come when something must be done, and in order to do it these men realize that we must go into the game with all the cards on the table face up, and with a guarantee that when the bonds are voted and sold that the city will get one hundred cents on every dollar it spends for the improvements contemplated and so badly needed. There is no question about people of Ada being progressive, and being willing to do all in their power to help the city make progress, but they do want value received for what they spend.

That is what they are going to get under the present arrangement, and it is thought that within a few days the joint committee will be in position to submit a proposition for the people's consideration which they will be more than glad to support.

CONGRESS TO FEED THE INDIANS.

A congressional election will be on again next year, so congress is fixing to pay the Indians, through the Indian Agency, another paltry sum from the vast amount of money to their credit at the alms house of the poor Indian located at Muskogee.

Cato Sells, the man who holds the power of life and death over the original inhabitants of this country, has notified the Oklahoma delegation in congress that Secretary of the Interior Lane has approved the "rules and regulations" (of Sells) and that the Chickasaws are to soon get $200 each from the thousands that rightfully belong to them, and that the Choctaws are to get $140 each.

This order the Oklahoma delegation will communicate to the unsophisticated Indians of this state, that they, having notice of said magnanimity, may be governed in their expenditures for the coming year accordingly.

This money will be paid through the benevolent and protective order of warts at Muskogee and for a few months, at least, the Indians in this country, wealthy in their own name but robbed of their inheritance by the highwayman known as "Chief Red Tape," will be guaranteed three squares a day for the first five or six weeks following the payment.

If there is a God of justice, and if there is a day of judgment, I trust that I will be laying off and attending court in heaven when the "fixers" and "fumbler" and "fuddlers" who make the "rules and regulations" to which Cato Sells refers appear before that tribunal for judgment.

TAKE DOWN THE AWNINGS.

There is some agitation afloat for the removal of the uneven and unkempt awnings over the various business houses on Main street, and we are informed that the property owners and the occupants of the buildings alike are almost unanimously in favor of it.

Come to think of it, there is nothing that would improve the street from the standpoint of beauty so much as this one move. It is not within our province to "butt in" or even suggest that this be done, but since we didn't originate the scheme we thought it within our prerogatives to say that the most progressive and most beautiful young cities throughout the country are doing it, and if the business men of Ada can see their way clear to do likewise, nothing they could do would so much improve the looks of the business district.

When the European war broke out the United States owed foreign investors billions of dollars. Our foreign owned securities were not only redeemed, but the government and private interests have loaned European nations nearly twenty billions of dollars. In addition to this great financial achievement, the United States financed her own war activities to the extent of many millions of dollars. All this was done without serious disturbance to the financial system of the country. The United States has become the leading financial nation of the world, and instead of borrowing from Europe as formerly, Europe will now be borrowing from us. The Federal Reserve Banking system revolutionized the financial methods of this country and made possible all these great achievements.

There were ten generals on a ship that docked at New York last Saturday. It may be none of our business, but we sort of hope the ship's captain made them click their heels when he came on deck.

Ardmoreite: Of course, if Oklahoma City and Tulsa can't settle their dispute as to which city is entitled to the federal reserve bank, Ardmore is willing to effect a compromise by accommodating the new institution.

Ardmoreite: A valued reader requests that we tell just what "choc beer" is. We take some little pride in confessing that we don't know any more about "choc beer" than Henry Ford knows about Benedict Arnold. We have heard of it—that's all.

He Sees the Joke.

Miami News: Senator Gore, in a letter addressed to the Oklahoma, a copy of which has been sent to the editor of the Miami Daily News, charges the Oklahoma with misrepresenting him, but declares that, being Irish, he can see the humor of the situation. Senator Gore, in this letter, defines his position on the League of Nations, and he is unqualifiedly for it.

A report was current in the state some time ago that Senator Gore was opposed to the League of Nations, but his friends in this part of the state gave it no credence. He has since attempted to deny the statement through the public press, but as it is a matter entirely between Senator Gore and the Oklahoma, the paper refuses to handle the letter.

Milburn News: Not long ago I sat at a table and heard a man ask a beautiful blessing. It made me feel as though it was almost a crime to eat the food placed before me. Three minutes after he had said "Amen," with so much fervor he was lambasting his tired wife good and hard because she had put too much salt in the soup. Next the coffee was too cold and the cream had turned a little. To wind up, the bottom crust of the pie was a little hard and the man of the beautiful prayer sarcastically asked his trembling wife if she had a chisel and heavy mallet so he could chip off a mouthful. I have seen that same grouch away from his own fireside accept the rottenest kind of service and junk with a smile and have heard him declare everything was grand. He knew if he put up a kick he would get a polite invitation to get out and stay out, and if he didn't get out he would be kicked out. What his patient wife should do is to carry a heavy rolling pin along with her and when the old grouch starts to roar, reach over and tap him on the head. About the second tap would make him as mild as the lowly May zephyr. That's the way to bring up father.

Star Democrat: Many of us can remember when certain ballistics said that if Americans would stay out of Cuba there would be no trouble with Spain. Most of us remember when the same pacifists said we had no right to travel the submarine zone. Few of us are surprised, therefore, when it is said that Americans have no right to enter Mexico. If these same pacifists had been living at the time of the crucifixion, they would have blamed Christ for his martyrdom. They would have said he had no business up at Jerusalem. The command to go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature would have been branded as a scheme of the Standard Oil Company to exploit the inhabitants of Gentile countries. When an American woman is raped at Tampico they say it is a trick of the capitalists to gain possession of the Mexican oil fields. But wisdom is justified of her children.

Where the Urban Trained Farmer Wins. Muskogee Times-Democrat: The city man turned farmer, and tens of thousands of him are turning, is usually an object of sympathy to the sorrowing neighbors for some moons after he begins to sow, and to cultivate, and, maybe, to harvest.

But there is one thing the city man on the farm does do that the average lifelong farmer does not. On the rare occasions when the city man has anything to sell he sells it in the best market.

Also he usually buys in a cheaper market than his neighbor, who has a line of credit at the country store, and who never bothers about prices.

If we were to be asked for the most significant clue to the new agriculture, we would choose the new salesmanship that farmers are beginning to adopt.

Many farms now have their own truck lines, and transport their own products direct to the city public markets or the retailers and commission houses.

The urban mind first saw the advantage of the farmer having his own "railroad."

The city man may not raise much, on his agricultural experiment station, but his sense of management, his ideas of salesmanship, and his knowledge of the power of co-operation will be a Godsend to the real producers.

"As It Is Spoke."

McAlester News-Capital: American individuality is forging an almost wholly new language for the nation as any man or woman knows who reads. The new language may bring tears of despair to the eyes of adherents of simon-pure grammar and it may not be in keeping with the best parlor ethics but "facts is facts."

The English soldier had much trouble understanding his American cousin during their stay together recently mainly because the vernacular of the American doughboy was as strange as some half-forgotten language. And this new form of speech is handed up instead of down. That is, we are not looking to professors or grammarians for our new words and phrases, but to the street. Custom takes up a catch phrase, like the roll of it on the tongue, and soon it becomes national. The baseball-player, the bootblack spit out some euphonious slang and it is taken up rapidly until even the preacher unconsciously uses it in his closely studied sermon. The cartoonist plays upon a fancied expression and it is accepted from one end of the land to the other in less time than it would take to publish a book of English as it is supposed to be spoken. From the angle of the dictionary we are distorting many old line words until they are rarely ever heard in their proper relation. Listen to any man talk, whether he be saint or sinner, rich or poor, educated or ignorant, and you must be impressed with the fact that the slang is slung with much ease that slang is becoming so much a part of us that it is American language.

A good example of this national tendency is contained in the following news story taken from a St. Louis paper:

Slinging slang glibly is qualification for citizenship.

"Do you believe in anarchy or polygamy?" Judge Triebel in the United States district court asked Frank Zlatach, applicant for citizenship.

"Nothin' doin'," Frank came back. "Are you married and the head of a family?"

"Betcher life," said Frank.

"Do you intend to stay in this country?" the court asked.

"I'll say so," was the reply. Zlatach was accepted.

Clyde Jones, better known about Ada as Pat, is visiting in the city for a few days. Pat is now head of the manual training department of the high school at Beaumont, Tex., a position he had held for several years. During the summer months he has been taking work in Menominee, Wis., where he has almost completed the Bachelor of Arts course. Pat is remembered here as a popular student of the Normal and a star performer on the mound of the teachers' baseball nine. It was while Pat was in the box that the teachers administered such a crushing defeat to the A. & M. team the year the farmers made such a great showing throughout the Southwest.

The telephone company has about completed the new cable they are building in the Sunrise addition to Ada. The new cable will make it possible for the company to take care of several hundred more phones, which will greatly improve the service. The addition will cost them completed several thousand dollars.

A Ford coupe driven by a traveling man was wrecked yesterday while going out North Francis avenue. The driver was examining an oil can in the car and failed to notice where he was driving. He ran down a five-foot embankment and the car turned completely over. The left wheel was wrecked. The top was crushed in and this was all that saved the driver's life. He was not injured more than several scratches about the face.

LIKEWISE THE CHRISTIANS ARE "FERNINST" THE LIGHT FANTASTIC

Resolution.

We, the undersigned elders and deacons of the First Christian Church in Ada, Oklahoma, believing that the modern dance is highly dangerous to morality and subversive of spirituality and therefore an enemy of the cause of Christ, do hereby declare ourselves unalterably and unqualifiedly opposed to its practice in every form, whether in private or in public. We believe that no person who dances can be true to Christ, that no such person, after being warned and failing to heed, should be continued as a member of the church in good standing, and much less should any such person occupy any position in the Sunday school either as teacher or officer, nor should any person who dances or permits his family to dance occupy any position of leadership in the church or any organizations within the church.

Don't Overlook the Ham-Ramsay Meeting

The MAN who has no musical talent.

From the time in his youth when he took lessons for six months in an unsuccessful effort to master the "Honey Bees Waltz," he has been classed by himself and his friends as one who never would be able to play. Yet he loves music and regrets that he is denied the pleasure of performing upon some musical instrument. He has the desire for musical expression but Nature neglected to give him the talent for satisfying it. What he and all others like him need is

The Manalo

The Player-Piano that is All but Human
The Instrument You Were Born to Play

Only this mere desire for musical expression is required to make the Manalo play in the way to satisfy that desire as fully as if the performer were playing expertly by hand. The Manalo responds to musical desire as completely and instantaneously as a piano responds to talented fingers because it is controlled from the pedals, the place where one naturally tries to put one's feeling into the music. Just want to play and the Manalo lets you with all the delightful satisfaction of one who has the talent to play without limitation by hand.

DOCTOR ADVISED HIM TO TAKE IT

A. F. ROBERTS, SUCCESSFUL
CATTLE DEALER GAINS
16 POUNDS IN 60 DAYS
TAKING TANLAC.

"One of the best doctors in Colorado advised me to take Tanlac, and it has not only overcome my troubles but I have gained sixteen pounds since I began taking it sixty days ago," said F. A. Roberts who lives at Rocky Ford, Alberta, Canada, a few days ago.

Mr. Roberts is one of the largest cattle dealers in his section of the country, and before moving to Canada a short time ago, he had spent most of his life in Colorado, U. S. A.

"I can now understand why Tanlac enjoys such wide popularity both in Canada and the United States," continued Mr. Roberts, "and since it has done me so much good, I know that it is very dependable medicine and deserves all the praise that is being given it. For the past two years I have suffered from stomach trouble, and when I commenced taking this Tanlac, it was almost impossible for me to retain anything I ate. I was very nervous and never got a good night's sleep, and finally got so weak and run down that I was hardly able to get about. I often had dizzy spells, and was bothered a great deal with constipation.

"My physician certainly knew what he was doing when he prescribed Tanlac for me, for I am as healthy and strong now as I ever was in my life. In fact it has done much more for me than I expected it would do. I have a fine appetite and everything I eat agrees with me perfectly, and I never have the slightest sign of stomach trouble of any kind. I am no longer bothered with constipation, and never have those dizzy spells any more. I have regained all my strength, too, and that nervousness has left me, and I sleep like a log every night. In fact, I am simply enjoying perfect health again, and I give Tanlac credit for it all."

The Covenanter Letters

Being a Discussion of the Covenant of the League of Nations by Eminent Men.

No definition of the Monroe Doctrine having official sanction has ever been given except by Presidents or Secretaries of State; and, except in the few concrete cases that have required its application, they have generally contented themselves with describing its historical origin and the general principle on which it is founded. Even the Senate, in ratifying the Hague Convention of 1907, and in seeking to reserve the Monroe Doctrine, referred to it as our "traditional attitude toward purely American questions," leaving the character of that "attitude" as much subject to question by the signatories as it had been before the reservation was made. And, although on the other hand, Secretary Olney in 1895, in the Venezuelan controversy, said: "Today the United States is practically sovereign on this continent and its fiat is law upon the subjects to which it confines its interposition"; on the other hand, President Roosevelt in 1901 said that the Monroe Doctrine did not prevent foreign nations from collecting by force debts owing by American nations, and in 1898 the United States refused to protect Chile when Spain was bombarding her ports, because it would not intervene in wars between European and American states "if they are not pushed to the political point."

Difficult to Define.
These references serve to point out the difficulty of an attempt in any diplomatic document to define the Monroe Doctrine.

But however inaccurate it may be to refer to the Monroe Doctrine as a "regional understanding," Article XXI correctly describes it as "securing the maintenance of peace." It was of the essence of the Doctrine that foreign nations should not be permitted to implant among the nations of the Western Hemisphere autocratic principles of government lest they should become a menace to the free institutions of the United States, and we might again have to resort to arms for the maintenance of the principles settled by the Revolution; and in practice the dominance of this country in the affairs of the Western Hemisphere has undoubtedly saved it from repeated exploitation at the hands of European and Asiatic nations. The frequent revolutions in South and Central America, often accompanied by the seizure of power in the name of liberty by disloyal and unscrupulous dictators, would have afforded tempting opportunities to European autocracies at small expense and by the use of a merely nominal force, to secure a permanent foothold upon this continent, gradually established colonies which would have become a menace to our republican institutions, or at least a source of national inquietude. All of this has been prevented without the use of a single instance of military force by the Monroe Doctrine, which is, therefore aptly described in Article XXI as "securing the maintenance of peace."

A Possible Reservation.
But if the Senate is of the opinion that the use of the words "regional understanding" creates any doubt as to the meaning of Article XXI, it can, in ratifying the treaty, make a declaration that its action is taken under the reservation that the Covenant is to be so construed as to leave the Monroe Doctrine unaffected. In view of the general purpose and effect of the League, referred to above, such a reservation would not be regarded as a substantial amendment of the commentary of the delegates of Great Britain upon the revised Covenant is particularly pertinent. They refer to the Monroe Doctrine and similar understandings as having "shown themselves" in history to be not instruments of national ambition but guarantees of peace," and add:

"The origin of the Monroe Doctrine is well known. It was proclaimed in 1823 to prevent America from becoming a theatre for intrigues of European absolutism. At first a principle of American foreign policy, it has become a national understanding and it is not illegitimate for the people of the United States to say that the Covenant should recognize that fact."

"In its essence it is consistent with the spirit of the Covenant, and, indeed, the principles of the League as expressed in Article X represent the extension to the whole world of the principles of this Doctrine, while should any dispute as to the meaning of the latter ever arise between the American and European powers, the League is there to settle them."

This commentary received especial force from the fact that England had a close historical connection with the proclamation of the Monroe Doctrine in 1823 and in the Venezuelan dispute the most advanced claims as to the vast scope of the Doctrine was sharply called to her attention; and no delegation at the Peace Conference probably understood better than that of Great Britain how the Monroe Doctrine was intended to be affected by Article XXI.

"Validity" Not Endangered.
The "validity" of the Monroe Doctrine is not "affected" by Article XXI, the Doctrine is excluded from the operation of the Covenant. If, therefore, a case within the principle of the Doctrine should arise it would not be within the jurisdiction of the League. Even if a question whether the Doctrine extended to a particular situation could be made the subject of inquiry under Article XV, there could be little doubt of the result; for, if we except a few cases where doubt has existed as to the applicability of the Doctrine, and the belated assertions of President Carranza that it is no-existent, it is now understood by all of the nations of the world.

But it is too late to have forebodings on account of the remote chance that a question concerning the Monroe Doctrine may have to be submitted to arbitration or inquiry under the Covenant, for, by the Bryan treaties, ratified by the Senate in 1914 and 1915, we have already agreed with Great Britain, France, Italy and six other European nations, as well as with Chili, Brazil, Peru and seven other American states, that all disputes of an international character, including those affecting national honor and vital interests, such as the Monroe Doctrine, shall be submitted to an International Commission for investigation and report, and that pending such report war will not be declared or hostility commenced. These treaties are "international engagements" and their validity, within the reservation of Article XXI, is not affected by the Covenant. Under the Bryan treaties, therefore, arbitrators, a majority of whom are not to be American citizens, would have jurisdiction to consider and report concerning any dispute arising under the Monroe Doctrine, and while the arbitration was proceeding this country would be obliged to abstain from enforcing the Doctrine, however exigent the situation might be. Under such circumstances the question whether Article XXI adequately reserves the rights of the United States under our traditional national policy loses much of its importance.

Tides of the Ocean.

The incoming and the outgoing of the tides is caused by the gravitational influence of the moon. The moon, so to speak, draws or lifts the water from the depths on the same principle that a pump lifts water. And as with a pump, the water rushes in to fill the space left; so the shallow water near shore rushes out to fill the extra space caused by rising of the water, on the principle that water seeks its own level.

Who Owns the Air Over Your Head? Court to Decide

By the Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, July 29.—Whether a property owner is also owner of the air above his land is to be determined through a court action brought by Frederick Hoenemann, a farmer. He seeks to restrain a company owning airplanes from using the air above his farm.

Hoenemann contends that sight of the machines and the noise of their engines disturb the livestock. There is said to be no direct precedent to guide the court, and the case is causing wide discussion in legal circles.

Legal experts of England have discussed the matter from the standpoint of national ownership of the air, it is said.

"Some lawyers contend that freedom of the seas and freedom of the air are the same, while others assert the courts have held that ownership carries with it light and air above the property as well as the earth beneath.

It is pointed out that when the steam engine came there were many law suits, the plaintiffs contending that the noise as well as the danger jeopardized their stock. The Massachusetts Supreme Court, however, rendered the opinion that in keeping with progress, attorneys say a similar condition arose when motor cars came into use, but the highest court of Indiana ruled in their favor on the ground that the law must keep pace with progress.

McKeel-Patrick.

A very pretty event of interest to friends in Denison and Ada, was the wedding of Miss Mae Patrick and Mr. Bill McKeel of Ada, which took place at Denison at the Presbyterian manse at 9:30 o'clock on Sunday evening of July 27th, the Rev. Hobbs officiating. The ring ceremony was solemnized in the presence of the immediate members of the families, and a number of additional guests.

The bride was lovely in her wedding gown of white georgette, and white picture hat. She carried a shower bouquet. The groom wore the ever-popular blue serge. The maid of honor, Miss Lorena Benton, was beautiful in a white organdie frock. She carried a bouquet of roses and orange blossoms.

Other attendants at the wedding were, Mrs. Cora C. McKeel, the mother of the groom, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Little, a bride and groom of this month.

An informal reception followed the ceremony, at the home of the bride's parents after which Mr. and Mrs. McKeel accompanied by Mrs. C. C. McKeel and Mr. and Mrs. Little, left immediately for Ada, amid rains of rice, showers of old shoes, and shouts of laughter and good wishes.

The bride is the very pretty daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Gaskell. She is a graduate of the Denison High school and was for two years a student of Baylor College at Waco, Texas.

The groom is a well known young man in this city, and has a host of friends among the younger set. Bill has recently returned from a school of mechanics in St. Louis, of which he is a graduate.

Mr. and Mrs. McKeel are now at home to their friends at 117 East Tenth.

sacred task of evangelizing the world.

"You have been wondering if the theater can't be reformed. The more reformation secured in the theater the worse its influence in the city. The theater is society's baby rattle and I wish it would keep on getting viler and viler so that there would be a universal revolt so that its yoke might be cast off. The church is the only soul-saving institution in the world, and yet you will continue in the membership of your churches moral lepers as vile as the devil. No wonder your churches have no influence in the community. Discipline your refractory members, your pastors, and then your churches will have the respect of the citizenship. If your church members in Ada once got fully aroused there never could be a dance any nearer to Ada than at Francis. It is the business of the church to destroy the works of the devil and you had better get busy. Through the church God wages war, but he can't work through a compromising church."

THE AMERICAN-FRANCE TREATY TO SENATE TODAY

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 29.—The American-France treaty will be sent to the senate today by President Wilson. Secretary Tumulty announced that the treaty and presidential message would be sent by messengers and not presented in person by the president. Mr. Wilson may not leave on his tour of the country until August 15th, owing to the excessive heat.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Cox of Roff, were visiting their son, Fred and wife today and were also making arrangements for their son, Sam, to leave tomorrow for Washington, D. C., where he will enter school for a College preparatory course, to be gone during the next term of school.

REMARKABLE JUMP IN EXPORTS FOR JUNE

A remarkable jump in exports during June brought the total for the fiscal year 1919 to more than seven billion dollars, a new record, according to a statement issued today by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce.

The June exports are put at $918,000,000, which exceeds the previous high record, established in April of this year, by more than $200,000,000. The exports for June of last year were valued at $484,000,000. Total exports for the fiscal year stand at $7,225,000,000, as compared with $5,920,000,000 for the fiscal year 1918. This is more than three times the exports for 1914, the last normal year. Exports since the armistice was signed in November are estimated at about $5,000,000,000. The excess of exports over imports for the fiscal year 1919 was $4,129,000,000 against $3,000,000,000 the previous year and less than $500,000,000 in 1914.

Imports for June were valued at $293,000,000, a falling off from the total of $329,000,000 recorded for May, but an increase over the $260,000,000 for June of the previous year. Total imports for the fiscal year just closed are placed at $3,096,000,000, as against $2,946,000,000 for 1918.

The removal of wartime restrictions caused a decided increase in the exports of gold, from less than $2,000,000 each in April and May to $83,000,000 in June. Gold exports for the fiscal year amounted to $117,000,000, against $191,000,000 for 1918. Exports of silver fell off from $29,000,000 in May to $13,000,000 in June, but increased from $139,000,000 for the fiscal year 1918 to $301,000,000 for 1919.

ICE PLANT HANDICAPPED BY BREAK IN WATER MAIN

The break in the water main between here and Byrd's Mill Spring the source of Ada's pure water supply, has put the Ada Ice & Cold Storage Co.'s business in a critical situation.

At ten o'clock last night the plant was forced to shut down, and from that time until noon today, when the water came on, the plant had just lost fourteen hours, or nearly two shifts.

That means that the plant will be emptied of ice before it can catch up the loss, and with the heavy demands from the outside, caused by the shipment of so much fruit, and perishable goods, it is working a hardship on the plant from which it will be hard to recover.

If you fail to get as much ice as formerly for the next day or so blame it on the break in the water main and not on the ice plant.

Virgil Dameron came in today from New York for a visit with his parents, Rev. and Mrs. S. B. Dameron. Virgil has been in the navy three and a half years, and just recently arrived in this country from a trip to Turkey. He is off on a fourteen day furlough. He is with the steamship Arizona.

QUICK RECOVERY.

Helen had the whooping cough and so was not invited to her little friend Margaret's birthday party, though the invitation list included all the other children in the neighborhood. On the morning of the affair the telephone girl might have overheard the following conversation:

"Hello."
"Hello, is this Margaret Hillfield's house?"
"Yes."
"Is this you, Margaret?"
"Yes. Who is this?"
"This is Helen Honeywell. You are going to have a birthday party today, aren't you?"
"Yes."
"Well, say, Margaret, I'm all over the whooping cough now."—Newark News.

Strength of Character.

"He's a milliner."
"Umph."
"Don't jump to the conclusion that a fellow in that line of business is necessarily a mollycoddle. I recently overheard him addressing some remarks to a punctured tire that would have done credit to a Kentucky colonel in the heat of a political argument."

New Material.

"What's the idea of starting this new sensational investigation?"
"Well," responded Senator Sorghum, "it seems necessary to do something to take the people's minds off of a lot of other investigations that there doesn't seem to be any way to finish."

LUCKY CHOICE.

I'll tell you, old man, Grace is a bright girl. She's brains enough for two. Then she's the very girl for you.

Standing Room Appreciated.
This world is but a fleeting show. Some say not worth a pin. But just the same we feel that we were lucky to get in.

Mistake.

"The new cook is dropping kitchenware all over the stove," exclaimed Mrs. Crosslots.

"No, she isn't," answered her husband, after listening carefully; "she is merely playing jazz records on the phonograph."

Likely Gift.

Graves—Young Percy Spendthrift is celebrating his marriage and also his birthday today. I wonder what the wealthy bride will give him for a birthday present?

Toombs—Likely her bank book with the sentiment, "Always yours."

His Fault.

Mrs. Penham—We became engaged under the mistletoe.

Benham—I know it, but I'm not blaming the blamed plant; it didn't grow over my head, and I got under it, knowing all its deadly properties.

Unkind.

"When everything is said and done"

she began.

"I never expect to see that day," he interrupted.

"What day?"

"When you've said everything."

Looked Encouraging.

"Has that young man who is calling on you given you any encouragement, Emily?" asked the father.

"Oh, yes, father. Last night he asked if you and mother were pleasant to live with," replied the daughter.

WHAT HE COULD DO.

Do you know the words of the Star-Spangled Banner? No, but I can stand while the others sing it.

Honor Among Thieves.

He stole a kiss, but gave it back. And now that girl believes that there is still some honor left among some sort of thieves.

The Proof.

"Brides must be a drug on the market."

"What makes you say such a thing?"

"See for yourself. Fathers used to sell their daughters. Now, they give them away."

Natural Result.

"My ambition is to make enough to buy a little place in the country and raise chickens."

"Ah! Is that the ambition which is egging you on?"

"The office should seek the man." "Maybe so. But when that time comes us heifers won't get no credit for electing him."

Knocking.

Reggie—I haven't—been quite myself lately don't you know.

Miss Keen—Indeed. I haven't noticed any improvement.

ADA TO HAVE COUNTY FAIR THIS FALL

known to the Chamber of Commerce last night, that body readily agreed that the fair should be held and that sufficient stock could be sold to relieve the situation. In fact, J. F. McKeel assumed the roll of auctioneer and sold $900.00 worth of the stock at the meeting last night, and the chairman appointed a committee of two to work with the committee from the breeders and the joint committee thereby composed will finish the job.

With the work formerly done by the breeders, and with that accomplished at the meeting last evening, there remains necessary to sell only $1,000 worth of the stock.

It should be an easy matter to sell the remaining thousands dollars worth of stock, and if this is done the indebtedness can be cleared up and Pontotoc county can have a fair this fall second to none in the state. It is a sure thing now that this will be done.

This is not all the indebtedness of the fair association, neither is the amount mentioned all the stock of the corporation that is for sale, but the arrangement mentioned will relieve the situation and enable us to have the fair.

It was shown that the real estate and improvements at the fair grounds represented values far in excess of the capitalization of the association, and that the purchase of this stock is not a donation nor an act of charity, but that it is, in fact, a good investment—or, rather, the obligations are paid and the fair placed on a self sustaining basis. The only reason it isn't due to its indebtedness, and this could all be cleared, we understand, if all the unsold stock of the corporation was disposed of at par.

In view of these facts every farmer and breeder in the county should begin now to get busy and prepare to make the fair the best ever held in this section. This can easily be done for the very good reason that we have never before been blessed with a more favorable season nor with more favorable crops.

Exhibits at State Fair.

County Agent Hill also explained that Pontotoc county had not had at least, since his residence in the county, a regular collective exhibit at the state fair at Oklahoma City. This is due to the fact, he said, that there were no funds available to defray the expense of taking the exhibits there, taking care of the booth during the fair and returning the exhibits to the owners.

Mr. Hill stated that he estimated that it would take about $250.00 to put on the exhibit, and that if the Chamber of Commerce would devise some means of taking care of the expense he would take it upon himself to see that the proper exhibit was collected.

In order that Mr. Hill might proceed to notify the farmers and get the collection ready, the Chamber of Commerce guaranteed the necessary amount for expenses and authorized him to proceed. It is not known at this time what method will be used to raise the money, but it will be forthcoming.

B. A. Pratt, teacher of agriculture in the Normal here, together with County Agent Hill, will take active steps to put the county fair proposition in shape and also prepare the exhibit for the state fair at Oklahoma City.

Senator Luther Harrison explained the new law by which counties can organize by townships and secure a levy which will make a free county fair possible and permanent, and the chairman appointed a committee to look into the matter and see what steps were necessary in Pontotoc county to comply with the law and give us a permanent free county fair.

RAINS WAS GIVEN DIVORCE FROM WIFE

Judge Bolen granted a divorce in district court this morning to Tap Rains. The trial was held yesterday afternoon.

The Rains live in the Bebee country. Mrs. Rains was arrested some time ago on a warrant sworn out by her husband charging adultery with one Bias Sweatt who was their neighbor. The complaint was later dismissed. Rains then took out divorce proceedings. His wife denied all the charges made against her, and stated that her husband was simply of a mean and jealous disposition and that was why he accused her of infidelity.

The Rains have three children, two girls and a boy. The girls are 9 and 6 years of age and the boy is 4. Judge Bolen gave the custody of the older girl to her mother and the two younger children were given to their father. Rains was represented by E. S. Ratliff while Charles Orr represented Mrs. Rains.

POSTOFFICE CARRIER SERVICE TO INCREASE

Postmaster J. W. Westbrook has just received permission to add another carrier to the city force, and the same will be added in a short time.

Heretofore we have only had three carriers in the city, but now we are to have the fourth, the addition of which will materially enhance the service.

As a matter of fact the postmaster has the power to add additional carriers without permission from the department when the same is needed and when the districts of the city have complied with the provisions of the postal rules and regulations.

Sec. 131 of the postal laws covering this phase of the proposition reads as follows:

"City delivery limits may be extended by postmasters without specific authority from the department. Such authority will be given only when the territory to which it is proposed to extend service is provided with good, continuous sidewalks, cross walks, street lights and street signs and when the houses are numbered and provided with mail receptacles or slots in the doors for the receipt of mail. Service will not be extended to any block in which less than fifty per cent of the building lots are improved and houses occupied."

The local postmaster informs us that at least two districts in the city have been appealing for delivery service which have not complied with these conditions, one in the extreme southeast part of the city and one in the extreme northwest part.

If the people want carrier service extended into their localities, where service does not now exist, it is due to the fact that the postmaster is powerless to furnish it until such time as they comply with the postal laws and regulations.

This should be an inducement for all the people to number their houses, put up mail boxes and see that sidewalks and crossings are laid and that street signs and lights are installed.

These things are improvements that are much needed in certain parts of the city, and all that is required to get them is a little activity and agitation on the part of the residents.
